

Timothy Brown

has enjoyed a long and varied international career as a horn player since his professional debut over fifty years ago.

He was Principal Horn in the Bournemouth Symphony, the BBC Symphony and the Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment and has played as guest principal abroad with many orchestras including the Czech Philharmonic. He has worked with many distinguished conductors including Igor Stravinsky, Benjamin Britten, Otto Klemperer and Gunter Wand.

As a soloist and chamber player he has performed and recorded much of the horn repertoire on both period and modern instruments. His discography includes the complete Mozart horn concertos (on natural and modern horn), concertos by Vivaldi, Bach, Telemann and Haydn as well as chamber music by Mozart, Beethoven, Spohr and, with Ian Bostridge, Schubert and Britten.

Since leaving the BBCSO after twenty years' service he remains Principal Horn with the Academy of St Martin in the Fields while also playing and teaching in Britain and abroad.
